About FAI

Across the world, people are more interested than ever in knowing where their food comes from, how it was produced, and by whom. This represents incredible risks and opportunities for food brands to ensure they address the impact their production practices are having on people, animals and the environment. FAI's mission is to help food producers and retailers capture this opportunity and take practical steps toward solutions for climate and food security. We work with a range of companies from thought leaders and disrupters who want to challenge the status quo, through to those who are just beginning their sustainability journey, by helping them better understand their supply chains and challenges. Our strategic and evidence-based approach is focused on driving meaningful improvements across supply chains, mitigating risks and realising long term business benefits for our partners, by inspiring industry actors to meet and exceed key performance outcome measures, rather than telling farmers how to farm.

FAI have offices in England, Norway, Brazil and the US and a regenerative farming enterprise in Oxford, UK.
